

PEACE ONLY WHEN ENEMY IS CRUSHED SAYS CZAR

Royal Edict States Work of Obtaining Munitions Now on a New Basis and Russia Will Defeat Her Enemies.

TEUTONIC DRIVE CONTINUES AND ENORMOUS LOSSES ARE REPORTED

Russ Claim Army Is in Good Condition—Important Action at Hand in Dardanelles, Claim the French—6000 Turks Found Dead in Trenches—Turks Make Counter Claims.

By Associated Press.
Petrograd, June 30.—An Imperial announcement was issued today in connection with the formation of the Russian Board of Military Supplies. After expressing an unshakable assurance in the brilliant future of the Russian peoples, Emperor Nicholas says:

"The enemy must be crushed, for without that peace is impossible."

London, June 30.—The Germans and Austrians are pressing the Russians hard in their retreat through northeastern Galicia and southern Russian Poland toward the River Bug. The Russians say desperate German attacks on the rear guard have been repulsed with enormous losses.

Meanwhile Russia is endeavoring to work out a better organization of her munition supply system. With unlimited money and virtually unrestricted power, the new board of military supplies is expected to remedy the shortness in munitions to which the Russian reverses in Galicia have been largely attributed.

German submarines have claimed two more victims, the Norwegian steamer Gjese and the ship Cambuskenneth, of the same nationality, having been sunk by torpedoes.

London, June 30.—No loss in the driving power of the Teutonic armies, before which the Russians are retreating eastward, is indicated by the latest official reports from the front. All along the line, from eastern Galicia northward well into Russian-Poland, the Russians are being pushed back, although fighting stubbornly.

The French are hammering away at the German positions in the Arras region and making some progress, they report, meanwhile frustrating German attempts to gain new ground in the Vosges.

Predictions from French sources are that an important success for the allied arms in the Dardanelles is on the eve of achievement, the claim being made that the Turkish troops on the Gallipoli peninsula are showing signs of exhaustion and that they will be unable to hold their positions at Krithia much longer.

After recent attacks by the allies, resulting in an appreciable advance, it is declared 6,000 Turkish dead were found in the trenches.

London—June 30.—A British official statement issued today, dealing with the operations in the Dardanelles, announces that two lines of Turkish trenches have been captured to the east of Saghir Dere, and that three lines have been stormed to the west of that place.

London, June 30.—A Turkish statement says the allies on June 28 were repulsed with heavy losses, after attacks on the Turks at two points. It is claimed all allied batteries were silenced and two lines of trenches captured.

TRADE BALANCE OVER BILLION

By Associated Press.
Washington, June 30.—Official announcement of the greatest favorable trade balance in the nation's history—more than a billion dollars—for the current year ending at midnight was made today at the Department of Commerce. It exceeds by nearly $400,000,000 the best previous record.

LINER IS RAMMED

By Associated Press.
Deal, England, June 30.—The Holland-American line steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, having a large number of passengers on board, bound from New York to Rotterdam, was run down in a fog by an unknown steamer anchored in the Downs. The liner, although damaged, is still riding safely at anchor.

EVELYN IS LOCATED

By Associated Press.
New York, June 30.—Attorneys for the state were ready to begin their assault today upon the bulwark of evidence constructed by Harry K. Thaw to prove that he is sane and entitled to freedom.

It was expected that the last of the Thaw witnesses would be disposed of in time to permit the prosecution to open its case today with the introduction of documentary evidence.

The state's recess servers have found Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. She has been served with a subpoena at her summer camp near Malone, N. Y., and will testify against her husband, Harry K. Thaw, in the jury proceedings to determine his mental condition. Mrs. Thaw, it is understood, probably will testify next week.

RIOTERS INDICTED

By Associated Press.
Atlanta, Ga., June 30.—A grand jury today returned indictments charging riot against the 26 men arrested last Saturday in the vicinity of former Governor Slaton's home.

GREAT THROG ATTENDS WEDDING

By Associated Press.
Bowling Green, Mo., June 30.—Hundreds of guests from other states many of them prominent in the social and political life of the nation, were in Bowling Green today to attend the wedding of Miss Genevieve Clark, 20 year old daughter of Champ Clark, speaker of the national House of Representatives.

Miss Clark was to be married late today to James M. Thompson, publisher of the New Orleans Item. To the people of the state Speaker Clark had issued a blanket invitation, and so great was the throng of Missourians that took him at his word that Bowling Green could scarcely hold them.

To provide quarters for the hundreds whom townspeople could not entertain, sleeping cars were sidetracked in the local railroad yards. The wedding was to take place on the lawn of the Clark home. On the morning of the wedding of her daughter, Mrs. Champ Clark jumped out of bed at the news of the derailment of a train bearing guests to the wedding, and without waking her husband or any member of the bridal party, organized a relief auto party and went to the scene of the accident. None of the passengers of the train were injured. The accident occurred about six miles from the Clark home.

MEXICAN LEADERS MAY HOLD PEACE MEETING

Peace Conference Expected to Be Agreed Upon By All Leaders and Turbulent Mexico May Again Settle Down in Short Order—More Arrests Made By Secret Service Agents—Felix Diaz Can Not Be Located—Sack of Flour Sells for $350.

By Associated Press.
El Paso, Texas, June 30.—The possibility of peace being considered soon by leaders of the two larger warring factions in Mexico, and the continued search by federal authorities for Felix Diaz, nephew of former President Diaz, reported last night to have reached El Paso secretly, were the outstanding features of the Mexican situation here today.

Jose Isabel Robles, minister of war in the cabinet of Gutierrez, former provisional president, was authority for the statement that leaders of the two dominant factions have agreed to discuss peace terms. Robles declined to discuss any of the proposed terms, but expressed the belief that developments might be expected by the middle of July.

An all night search failed to disclose the whereabouts of Felix Diaz. Friends of Diaz were silent on the subject, while adherents of General Huerta professed ignorance of the motive of the Diaz visit.

Washington, June 30.—The activities of prominent Mexicans now in the United States, and others in connection with the Mexican political situation, attracted much attention in official and diplomatic circles here today, and caused renewed discussion of the possibility of peace in the southern republic.

These activities included the efforts of General Felipe Angeles, Villa's right hand man, to learn the sentiment of Washington officials toward the Mexican situation; a reported peace move calling for a conference between Generals Villa and Obregon on the frontier, and the prospective conference between General Carranza and Charles A. Douglas, his Washington consul.

Officials here are awaiting to see if Carranza is willing to change his attitude toward peace overtures by General Villa. He has declined such offers in the past.

Laredo, Texas, June 30.—Alleged Huerta troops were concealed in the mountains of Chihuahua, Mexico, last Thursday, and for some time before that, according to a letter dated June 17, reaching here today from Madera, in the state of Chihuahua. The letter says a sack of flour at Madera costs $350 in Mexican money.

Today's reports of the fighting between Carranza and Villa forces near Monterey said shooting was almost incessant and loss of life was reported heavy.

El Paso, Texas, June 30.—General Marcello Coraveo, Ike Aldereto and Frank Aldereto were arrested by federal officials today in connection with the alleged Huerta plot to launch a new revolution in Mexico. Coraveo's bond was fixed at $5,000 and that of the Alderetos, who are brothers, at $4,000 each.

This makes a total of six arrests on similar charges since Huerta and Orozco were taken in charge by United States officials last Sunday. General Coraveo is known to have been in conference with Huerta yesterday.

FORNEY HELD WITHOUT BAIL

By Associated Press.
Pittsburg, June 30.—Thomas G. Forney, an attorney of Washington, D. C., and George McHenry, a waiter of the same city, were held for court without bail here today on three charges of conspiracy, felonious assault and battery and attempt to kill and murder F. T. Schneider, Forney's wealthy father-in-law.

Schneider was the principal witness and related how he was attacked in his room at the Hotel Anderson early last Thursday.

"Bill" Bowers was arrested in Washington, D. C., today at the request of the Pittsburg police, in connection with the assault on Schneider, and is held on a charge of conspiracy to commit a felony. The detectives who brought Bowers in say he confessed everything, according to Washington advices.

ERROR IN CIVIL SERVICE BILL

By Associated Press.
Columbus, June 30.—A number of members of the executive committee of the Ohio Civil Service Association were prepared to oppose calling a referendum on the new civil service bill when that committee met here today.

Mayo Foster, of Cleveland, secretary of the organization, was particularly hostile to a referendum and threatened to resign if such action were taken.

Discovery that the Barnes-Moore civil service bill, as signed by Governor Willis, contained material differences from the measure passed by the legislature, and thereby may be invalidated, was an added reason why members of the executive committee of the association hesitated about calling a referendum.

Attorney General Turner said today the question of the error in the bill had not been referred to him and he had no opinion to express. Governor Willis made no comment when his attention was called to the apparent error.

RUSSIANS STILL FALL BACKWARD

London, June 30.—Only a narrow slice of Galician territory remains in the hands of the Russians, according to dispatches from Petrograd, Berlin and Vienna. Beginning at a point at Tomaszow, Russian Poland, which was taken by the Austrians and Germans, the Russian battle line now is the chord of an arc 100 miles in length, its southern base being Bessarabia, the line following the Bug river to the east of Lemberg, and thereafter the Zlota Lipa and finally the Dniester.

All other portions of Galicia, with the immensely valuable oil fields, copper and lead mines, were finally cleared of Muscovites when the German forces succeeded in clearing the territory north of Rawa Ruska, driving the Russians out of the Tanew district of Russian Poland. The towns now remaining in Russian hands are Tarnow, Rusk, Brody and Zalocze, with the very short railroad tangent to the Russian border.

The official dispatches from Petrograd say that before Grand Duke Nicholas finally relinquishes his possession of the Austrian territory there will be one more pitched battle on a front thirty miles east and northeast of Lemberg, upon a strongly fortified line previously prepared.

The Berlin dispatches continue to recount German successes. The army of General Von Linsingen, which has been so strongly resisted by the army of General Ivanoff along the Dniester, has at last broken down the resistance. The Russians who had attempted to defend a line along the Gnila Lipa river were forced to retire fourteen miles east to the Zlota Lipa, and here they are endeavoring to straighten their line and effect a junction with the Russian armies holding a little strip in Bukowina and the armies of the grand duke in the north.

Berlin says that fighting is continuing over every foot of ground with success rewarding their arms.

The main forces of General Von Mackensen strengthened out his lines east of Lemberg. Beginning at Przemyśl and southeast of Lemberg, he ran his line almost due north to Kamionka and is now threatening Rusk and the Bug river.

The final clearing of Galician territory to the north and northeast of Rawa Ruska was thoroughly in line with the steam roller tactics pursued throughout the campaign. The Russians had made a stand along the Polish border and in the Tanew river district. With the overwhelming heavy artillery and the 2,800 pound Sjoeda shells the Russians were forced to retire. It is not thought likely they can hold their present positions east and north of Tomaszow. Notwithstanding the French attacks around Arras, it is argued that the Germans must feel comparatively secure in the west, else they would not have risked their tremendous enveloping move against the Russians. The French are persisting in their assaults in the neighborhood of Arras, but without appreciable change in the situation.

BARNES-MOORE CIVIL SERVICE ACT DEAD?

Columbus, June 30.—It is stated that the Barnes-Moore civil service bill Governor Willis signed May 28 and which was filed with Secretary of State Hildebrandt is not the one the senate and house passed. The bill as passed included an important exemption from the classified list, which is missing from the measure the governor signed. The omission is that of "bureaus" such as are "appointed by the governor or by and with his consent." The blunder is thought to have been made in engrossing the bill. Lawyers hold the entire act nugatory. The attorney general will be asked for an opinion.

A COERCION OF LABOR IS NOT SOUGHT

London, June 30.—The national registration bill, which is to ascertain the capacity for labor of every person in the United Kingdom between the ages of 15 and 65 years, was introduced in the commons by Walter Hume Long, president of the local government board. In his remarks Mr. Long declared there was no intention on the part of the government to seek to coerce labor, but that it wanted to place itself in a position to obtain the maximum output under adequate organization. He pointed out that the measure does not apply to skilled laborers or to trades unionists alone, but to other persons in the country, whether he or she be an artisan or a duke or duchess. At the same time, he added, registration will be compulsory, and there will be penalties for evasions or refusals to answer. The age, occupation and capacity for labor of every person within the age limit will be recorded. Every person of skill would be permitted to have a preference for that which he or she could best do, but all will be considered with the best public good.

The appropriation of an additional 50,000 men for the navy was sanctioned in the house of commons. McNamara, parliamentary secretary for the admiralty, explained that the men were not wanted for immediate service, but it was thought that they might be needed in the future. Recruiting for the navy, he said, has gone so smoothly that the full complement of 250,000 men already have been enrolled.

TURKS' GALLIPOLI POSITIONS STRONG

London, June 30.—The attack on Krithia and Achi Baba, at the southern end of the Gallipoli peninsula, at the Dardanelles, was made under trying circumstances to the allied forces. The Turkish positions at this line gave them a great advantage. A Cairo dispatch says it is believed that Achi Baba can be taken only by bayonet charges, which will demand, if made, a very heavy loss of life. The Turks do not seem to be short of ammunition.

GOVERNOR WILL NOT TAKE RESPONSIBILITY

Columbus, June 30.—Governor Willis refused to take from the shoulders of the state agricultural commission the responsibility of deciding whether to reduce the price of admission to the state fair from 50 cents to 25 cents. The question had caused a deadlock in the commission. Numerous ballots were taken, each ballot showing Commissioners Strode and Price for the reduction and Sandles and Williams against it.

FIGHTING GOES ON IN OUTSKIRTS

Washington, June 30.—Advises received at the state department confirm earlier reports of the serious conditions in Mexico City, where 2,000 American residents are endangered by fighting between the Zapata and Carranza forces on the edge of the city, with a desperate scarcity of food and no railway or telegraphic communications with the outside world.

From Vera Cruz came further reports that Carranza claims that General Gonzales will be able to take Mexico City in a day or two with the aid of reinforcements being sent to him, and assurances that Carranza had not only given orders for the proper protection of noncombatants, but would also send food into the city as soon as he had captured it.

The British embassy learned that Charge Hopley at Mexico City had succeeded in getting messages through to Vera Cruz, but that the Carranza authorities were refusing to let the charge's messages pass over the cable. The embassy instructed the consul to make representations to Carranza. Nothing has been heard by the embassy from Mexico City in eleven days, a fact which is regarded as serious.

The state department has taken no action regarding the Mexico City situation, recognizing the futility of representations to Carranza as a means of relieving the plight of the Americans and other foreigners in the capital.

The Villa and Carranza agencies were most active here. The Carranzistas represented that conditions in Mexico are not as bad as set forth, while the Villistas were busy in conferences with General Felipe Angeles. Villa's right-hand man, who is regarded as a possibility for the presidency of Mexico, Angeles came here from Boston, where he has been visiting his family, primarily to refute reports that he had associated himself with the Huerta movement. His visit to Washington was hastened by the publication of the fact that agents of the department of justice had been watching him and that they had reason to believe he was allied with the Huerta group. A statement denying these reports was issued by Angeles. He said also that he agreed with Villa in support of the suggestion of President Wilson that the factions in Mexico should confer and endeavor to unite for the establishment of a constitutional government in Mexico.

THAW'S SIDE PRESENTED

New York, June 30.—The last of a long line of witnesses who steadily have been taking the stand at the sanity hearing of Harry K. Thaw to swear that they believe Thaw to be sane, has been called by Thaw's counsel. These witnesses for his side not only swear emphatically that they think him perfectly sane now, but in the case of Dr. Charles P. Bancroft, head of New Hampshire state insane asylum and member of the Streetor commission, which declared Thaw sane after his escape from Matteawan, that he was sane even at the time he killed Stanford White.

The state will call a long line of witnesses in an effort to convince the judge and jury that Thaw is still insane.

CHEMIST TESTIFIES FOR THE PROSECUTION

Columbus, June 30.—Through Otto S. Marekworth, analytical chemist, formerly with the old Capital City Dairy company, the government produced the first direct evidence tending to connect Dennis Kelly, president of the company, with alleged conspiracy and with defrauding the government out of taxes on oleomargarine. Marekworth was jointly indicted with the officials. He told of four occasions when he declared he talked with Kelly concerning the coloring of the oleo with palm oil.

Finger Nail Spots.
It is now thought that the white spots which frequently appear on finger nails are due to the presence of gas in the substance of the nail. They occur much more frequently during youth and in women and are usually found in persons of a nervous type. There is no remedy for them and no means of prevention except the avoidance of injury to the nails.

In not a few cases the only rule for "safety first" is to walk.

After all the ultimatum crop is still unharvested.

OHIO BRIEFS

To Probe Lobby Operations.
Columbus, June 30.—Attorney General Turner is to ascertain whether lobbyists and employers of lobbyists have listed all, or only a part of their receipts and expenditures in the statements they have filed with Secretary of State Hildebrandt in compliance with the lobby register law. Turner has detailed reports of activities of various lobbyists during the last session of the legislature. They include reports of detectives on the doings of members of the coal lobby. These documents will be compared with the sworn statements of lobbyists and their employers on file in the office of Secretary Hildebrandt.

Move of Single Taxers.
Columbus, June 30.—Advocates of the single tax propose to submit a constitutional amendment permitting the adoption, by any city or county that so desires, of the so called site value system of assessing real estate. The amendment further provides that these political subdivisions may, if they see fit, exempt personal property from taxation and raise all their public funds from taxing real estate values.

Watchman Poisoned.
Elyria, O., June 30.—Police are trying to solve a mysterious poisoning case, in which John Sudro, night watchman at the A. R. Champney bottling works, was the victim. Sudro is in the hospital and will recover, though his condition is serious. It is thought that poison was placed in his lunch.

Bullet Hole in Boy's Head.
Fremont, O., June 30.—Orson Root, fifteen, was found in the dooryard at the home of his father, Walter Root, with a bullet hole in his head and a rifle at his side.

Farmer Run Down.
Marietta, O., June 30.—Charles Wood, seventy-eight, a farmer, was killed by a passenger train on a trestle two miles south of Waterford, O.

Towns Remain Dry.
Columbus, June 30.—Pikeeton, in Pike county, and Gilboa, Ottawa county, voted to remain dry.

STATEMENT OF EX-GOVERNOR

New York, June 30.—"I shall be three times stronger in Georgia within a month than I ever was before. I have lost sleep in the last week because of the mob, but had I allowed Frank to go to the gallows I would not have slept for forty years with his blood on my conscience." This was the statement of ex-Governor John M. Slaton of Georgia, the man who saved Leo Frank from death because he was convinced that the evidence did not prove the guilt of the young man. He had just arrived with Mrs. Slaton from Georgia for a short vacation in this city before going west for a few months. Slaton said frankly that he would return to Atlanta and practice law and if the people of the state expressed any sentiment for him he would be a candidate for re-election as United States senator.

ENABLES PRISONERS TO ASSIST FAMILIES

Washington, June 30.—Attorney General Gregory has a plan for establishing a co-operative system in federal prisons by which prisoners may be enabled to aid in the support of their families. Mr. Gregory announced upon his return from the Atlanta penitentiary, where he has been on a visit of inspection for the last five days, that his plan is fairly definite and that he intends soon to visit the Leavenworth penitentiary with the view of working out other details.

GENEVIEVE CLARK WEDS

Bowling Green, Mo., June 30.—Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of Speaker Champ Clark, was united in marriage this afternoon to James M. Thomson, thirty-seven, a newspaper publisher of New Orleans. Thousands of people witnessed the ceremony. No individual invitations were issued to anyone in Missouri, but the speaker and his wife, through the press, had invited all Missourians to attend. Practically every member of the Missouri, Illinois and Iowa congressional delegations attended and besides there were guests from Washington and other eastern cities. The bride received hundreds of presents.

REPRESENTED GEN. ANGELES

Windsor, Vt., June 30.—Two Villista officers, Colonel Jesus M. Aguilar of General Felipe Angeles' staff and Major Yreneo Garcia of General Raoul Madero's staff, came as emissaries of General Angeles, now in Washington, seeking and being denied an appointment here for Angeles with the president.

Through Dr. Grayson, his aide, the president sent word to the Mexicans that he could not see General Angeles here. He did not intimate whether he will see Angeles when he returns to Washington. The president also refused to see the two soldiers.

That Angeles desires to have Vasquez Tagle, former President Madero's minister of justice and the only Madero cabinet minister who did not resign, named provisional president and recognized by the United States, was declared by Aguilar, who collected Villa's million dollar tribute demanded from the city of Monterey. They also said Tagle, if named, might resign in favor of Angeles or serve until a national election could hoist Angeles to the president's chair. Aguilar and Garcia denied that Angeles is an ally of Huerta or involved in the alleged Huerta plot to start another revolution. They said Huerta would be shot if Villa could reach him.

Thaw Normally Insane

One of the expert witnesses—alienists is the latest style name given to that particular class of witnesses—testifying in the Thaw case, at New York City, on Monday unhesitatingly announced that Thaw was sane.

His explanation for the unusual conduct of the rich Pittsburger who, in a fit of jealous rage, murdered Stanford White was, in effect, that Thaw was a spoiled child grown to manhood.

The witness likened him to "some children of the rich" brought up without discipline, given his own way too much and lacked occupation—circumstances that lead to failure."

There is one expert—an alienist—who testified to something worth while. He exposed the germ which is at the heart of so much social evil. Sometimes the wrongs which rich parents commit against their children in rearing them in luxury with no occupation for mind or body, lead to a terrible tragedy and wrecked lives as in the Thaw case. Frequently the climax of a human career launched under such circumstances is less spectacular, but rarely ever less wretched.

If parents could only learn that the growing child must be occupied and must have some wants denied in order to develop the self control and mental and physical vigor so necessary to the normal man there would be less of misery come to the "poor rich children" in after years.

The alienist is correct in saying that, in the ordinary acceptance of the term Thaw is not "insane."

His is not a case of good mind becoming unbalanced. Rather it is a case of insanity brought about by a slow process of mismanagement and misdirection in childhood. A mind grown to believe that everything desired, even to the commission of murder, is proper if necessary to obtain a desire.

After all how far is that from insanity and is it not the most dangerous form of insanity?

Is it not when we come right down to the cold facts an insanity resulting from the construction of the brain rather than from disease?

It is possible too that Thaw is normally insane—that he cannot appreciate the rights and the privileges of others and is incapable of realizing that he cannot always do as he pleases. When a man reared under proper rules and guidance comes to believe that he is privileged to commit any act which his mind dictates—he becomes insane. Is a man who has always held that belief any the less insane?

Thaw probably is no worse than he always was mentally. His is a case of normal insanity and the unfortunate thing is that his case is not an isolated one.

Rich and indulgent parents are frequently the greatest drawback to their children's progress and all too often render their children insane by over indulgence.

Thaw's case is the most startling and tragic incident of a spoiled child grown to manhood which has come to light in a long time.

Children should have their tasks to perform and should have some of their wants denied in order to develop into normal men and women.

This world is made up of joys and sorrows and self-denial is one of the laws of the universe and rich parents cannot defy that law and protect their children from the demands of the world in that regard.

Women Need the Ballot to Protect and Educate Themselves

By Justice CHARLES L. GUY, Supreme Court of New York

THERE ought to be a law requiring every man to give his wife a certain proportion of the joint earnings as a right and not as a privilege. We have no privilege in this country or should have none. A wife has a right to share in the family funds.

After the household needs are satisfied a woman should have a fixed sum to do with as she pleases. She ought to have the right to spend it foolishly if she wishes, and it should be automatically given her by her husband as if it were one of the pay envelopes in his place of business.

NO WOMAN OUGHT TO BE FORCED TO GO THROUGH HER HUSBAND'S POCKETS TO COLLECT A LITTLE SPENDING MONEY.

The long hours and the unsettled pecuniary rewards of housework are driving women into work outside the home. They won't stand the drudgery, and no one can blame them. They need the vote to protect and educate themselves.

The women who don't want it are those whose sole purpose in life is the playing of the social game. They have already all they need and more than they give any equivalent for—all they desire save perhaps in some cases the social recognition to which they aspire.

WHEN THEY PRATE ABOUT WOMEN'S INFERIORITY THEY DON'T MEAN THEIR OWN INFERIORITY. THEY ARE OPPOSED TO WHAT ABRAHAM LINCOLN CALLED "THE PLAIN PEOPLE" HAVING ANY VOICE IN GOVERNMENT, WHETHER MAN OR WOMAN.

Poetry For Today

SUCCORING THE CLAN.

I was foolishly proud of the fact
I had relatives hither and yon;
I'd an uncle in Austria's tract
And another in Germany's sun.
But no longer I'm proud
Of that polyglot crowd,
For I now am supporting each one.

I've a cousin in Pontypridd, Wales;
I've a nephew residing in Cork;
And I'm getting my various mails
Little daily requests that I fork;
And I hourly behold
More demands for the gold
That's supposed to grow wild in New York!

From my grandfather's cousin's pet niece,
Who is living in Petrograd now,
I've a letter imploring some fleece
Of the aureate juvenile cow!
For the Petrograd bunch
Haven't had any lunch,
And they've got to get dinner somehow!

And I even have heard from a Turk
Of the city of minarets high,
Who perceives a relationship lurk,
Though it's certainly vague to my eye.
And the prophet's son says
He is holding his fez
For a lot of backsheesh from N. Y.!

There are calls from the hills of Savoy,
There are pleas from the banks of the Nile,

The Secret.

This rule success and great wealth brings,
You'll find that it is true;
You must go after all the things
That will not come to you.

The Wise Fool.

"Yes," commented the fool. "But you'll save a lot of trouble by beginning right."

All He Desires.

When seaship no man cares for gold,
He doesn't long for wealth, I'm told;
But, tossing in a steamer berth,
He often cries, "I want the earth!"

The Limit.

"That fellow Smith is certainly hard to please," remarked Jones.
"Should say he was," agreed Brown.
"Why, he acts like a college graduate who is looking for his first job."

Advice.

A Useless Decision

"I see here that the supreme court has decided that pedestrians have the same right at street crossings as automobiles," remarked the old fogey.
"What good will that do?" demanded the grouch. "Who wants to stand on a crossing and argue with a six-cylinder car that is traveling fifty miles an hour?"

Dams.

The year 1915 stands out as a great anniversary of peace after three long and exhaustive wars. The finale came on the Napoleonic wars through the peace treaty which followed Waterloo, 100 years ago. At the same time the United States and England were bring- ing to bear the force of the peace treaty negotiated in 1814, it is true, but not ratified and promulgated for some weeks or months. Half a cen- tury later came the peace of Appo- mattox, the echoes of which lasted on through the summer. Thus 1915 is the centennial of two great peace treaties and the semicentennial of an- other. Possibly the year will carry down to history the greatest peace tri- umph of the world.

WOMEN'S PART IN INDEPENDENCE DAY

They Had Glorious Share In Winning American Liberty.

IT has been said that in every woman's breast there lies the possibility of great heroism. What she can do when put to the test is amply illustrated by the events of history, not alone in our own country, but in all others.

Anecdotes of women of the Revolution, showing what they did and what they suffered in so doing, happy in the thought that they were serving the country they loved, are positively thrilling.

One wonders how many young women of today would offer themselves to carry a message from one army to another across a country fairly bristling with hostile troops when not a man could be found intrepid enough to take a letter from General Greene to General Sumter. Emily Geiger, a frail young girl, undertook the task and set out on horseback on a sidesaddle. She was intercepted on the second day of her journey by Lord Rawdon, who had her locked up until a Tory matron could be found to search her person.

JESSE DENNER DENIES THAT SWORN STATEMENT IS TRUE

Youth Who Was With Brother When John Bainter Was Killed, Says John Denner Acted in Self Defense, and Claims Confession Made March 22 Was False—Other Testimony Introduced in Murder Trial.

The court room was crowded with eager spectators Tuesday afternoon, when Jesse Denner, accused of being a party to the murder of John (Hoggy) Bainter on the night of the 11th of last December, was placed on the stand by the State to give evidence which was expected to do much toward establishing the innocence or guilt of his brother, John Denner, who is now being tried for his life on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Both brothers were clearly nervous, and it was seldom that the boy on the stand met the fixed gaze of his brother. The youth on the stand—a lad of some 19 or 20 years, heavily built, some 5 feet in height with not an unpleasant face and a great mass of very red hair, kept up a steady swaying back and forth in the witness chair. The attorney, W. B. Rodgers, who is to defend the young man when his trial comes at a later date, was nearby to take care of his client.

The direct examination was taken up by Attorney C. A. Reid, and Jesse Denner related a story of the murder of John Bainter while Bainter, John and Jesse Denner were out for the purpose of stealing corn. Under direct examination he said that Bainter, John and himself were walking side by side when the first shot was fired. He said Bainter was making an effort to use his gun when John Denner fired the first shot, and that the second shot was fired after Bainter had fallen.

The witness identified notes which he claimed had been written and passed between his brother and himself while they were in jail. The notes were offered as exhibits and read to the jury. In the notes alleged to have been written by John an appeal was made to Jesse to remain silent and not disclose anything; that the writer (John) had had a dream in which he thought Jesse had told everything concerning the crime. One of the notes implored the brother to not tell what he knew lest the death sentence be meted out to John and Jesse be sent to prison for life. In the same note Jesse Denner was urged not to tell about the crime and that he (Jesse) helped commit the crime. Jesse Denner stated that he had given the notes to Sheriff Jones.

The State then attempted to introduce a confession or "admission" which it was stated the witness had made in the presence of Sheriff Jones, Mayor Coffey, Prosecutor Maddox and Deputy Clerk of Courts, Miss Lawrence, on the 22nd day of March. The instrument, which Denner admitted he had signed and to which he also admitted he had been sworn, contained two or more typewritten pages of matter.

The witness was asked about certain statements made by him in the presence of several persons, but the court ruled this out until further examination was made. The witness stated that some of the statements he had made while in jail were falsehoods. The State tried to show that there was a wide variance in the story told on the witness stand and that previously told and to which the young man had made oath.

Jesse told how the murdered man's property had been taken charge of by John Denner, and what disposition had been made of a horse, wagon, harness, phonograph, household fixtures, etc. Many of his statements were somewhat contradictory. He had not been dismissed when court adjourned until Wednesday morning.

Wednesday morning Jesse Denner again was placed upon the stand and was carefully questioned. Under cross-examination young Denner stated that his brother had killed Bainter in self-defense after Bainter had pulled his gun and said he would blow Denner's brains out.

He denied the truth of his sworn statement made March 22 in the presence of several persons; denied that Denner shot Bainter without warning, as he had sworn was the case, and other important admissions in the document were denied. He said he had perjured himself because he was led to believe he would escape punishment. He admitted that before the statement was made he had been urged to tell nothing but the truth, and that Prosecutor Maddox, just before the confession was made, had warned him not to falsify. He said he had never heard Denner threaten Bainter. He said that when he and Denner went back after Bainter's body that John had lifted it into the wagon; that he (Jesse) had seen Bainter's gun on the ground near Bainter's body. Redirection examination elicited the statement that the wagon was between himself and the body of Bainter as the remains were lifted into the spring wagon to be carried to the grave which had been prepared. He denied having described to the Prosecutor and others how the crime had been committed—that John had stepped behind and a click was heard followed almost immediately by a gun-shot. After having previously denied his statement, he admitted that he had said that at first he thought a piece of the bullet had hit him. The witness later branded the statement as a falsehood.

Before noon Wednesday Mrs. David Alley, in charge of the matron of the Miami county jail, and Charles Alley, in charge of Supt. Crow, of the Xenia workhouse, were placed upon the stand. The woman testified that John Denner had told her that Bainter had become furious and left, and that Denner had told her about a fight with Bainter at a time after Bainter had disappeared.

Charles Alley related a conversation with Denner in which Denner had told him he purchased Bainter's property for $100.

Jas. Higgins, of Greenfield, to whom John Denner traded a horse and wagon for two lots, was the fourth witness called. He was questioned concerning the trade.

Isaac Lowe, of this city, who is said to have purchased part of the Bainter property sold by John Denner, was the fifth witness on the stand.

Clashes between the attorneys were not infrequent during the taking of evidence.

BIG DOINGS JULY FOURTH

The Welfare Association, backed by the pushing efforts of the Dutch Treat Club, is planning for the biggest kind of a Fourth of July celebration at the ball grounds, on Monday, July 5th, between the hours of nine a. m. and one p. m.

The local ball team has courteously given over all privileges of the ball grounds for that time and the attractions are sufficient to pack the grounds.

There will be a cracking good ball game, the Dayton Reserves against the Athletics, and local talent has agreed to give a scientific sparring exhibition, an event altogether out of the ordinary.

Definite arrangements will be given out later.

There will be all kinds of privilege stands in charge of the ladies of the Association and both hot and cold lunch with ice cream, soft drinks, candy, peanuts, pop corn, etc., sold at the various stands.

Everything will be done to make the celebration a gala occasion and it is expected that the crowd will be the biggest on the ball grounds in many a day.

MAY SEND GIRL TO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

The Juvenile court is now seriously considering the proper disposition of Lucy Snider, the girl who has been apprehended twice within a week for the theft of property from various homes.

After the child had stolen some linen from the Welfare Association and tried to dispose of it, she was taken in charge by Humane Officer Gooderl, who placed her under the care of a woman in this city until the court can take up her case. The child said her mother had aided her in concealing the marks on the linen stolen from the Welfare Association.

As the child has caused no end of annoyance to the authorities and has shown no inclination to forego her work of stealing, the authorities have reached the conclusion that the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware is the proper place for the little Miss.

POLICE WILL INSIST ON SANE 5TH OF JULY

Mayor Coffey announced Wednesday that he had instructed the police department to insist on a safe and sane "4th of July" observance Monday, July 5. Of course no fireworks may be discharged on Sunday the 4th.

The coming of the fourth day of July on Sunday this year has made it necessary, because of the pyrotechnical features of the holiday, to delay its observance until the fifth and since such occasions are rare it is necessary to form new and appropriate regulations.

The police force will be ordered to see that there are no Sunday celebrations and to prevent the use of explosives where it is dangerous to public safety.

MAY HOLD GREAT MEETING OF MEN

A union meeting of all men's Bible classes in this city, Greenfield, Chillicothe, Wilmington, and intermediate points is contemplated for some day during the present summer.

Under the present plan the meeting is to be held at Chautauqua park, Greenfield, and all Bible classes are to make the trip as a class, take dinner and enjoy an entire day.

The plans include speeches by a number of very prominent men, and the meeting itself to be in the nature of a great rally the like of which has never occurred in the history of the state.

The plan is meeting with general favor and it is more than probable that it will be taken up in the near future and worked out on a broad scale.

ENGLISH ROYAL NAMES.

The Present Reign, the House of Hanover, Started With George I.

The use of surnames was introduced into England by the Normans and for a long time were used only by the nobility. The earlier kings, therefore, had no claim of any sort to a family name, but are often designated by some quality, as Alfred the Great, Edgar the Peaceable, Edward the Martyr, etc.

Kings do not have family names which exactly agree with those of common people, their titles or estates more often giving them what corresponds to a surname. The kings from William the Conqueror to Stephen (1066-1154) were of the Norman line. The Plantagenets received their name from the adoption by Geoffrey, Count of Anjou, of the broom (plante de genet) as an insignia. This name was borne by the kings from Henry II. to Richard II. (1154-1485).

The Tudor line, which includes the rulers from Henry VII. to Elizabeth (1485-1603), received their name from Owen Tudor, a Welshman, who married the widowed queen of Henry V. and whose grandson was Henry VII.

The Stuart line includes the rulers from James I. to Anne (1603-1702). The name is derived from the important office of steward to the royal household of Scotland.

The house of Hanover, whose family name is often given as Guelph, started with George I., of whom George V. is a direct descendant.—Philadelphia Press.

SONG OF THE SWAN.

A Vocal Dirge About Which Poets and Naturalists Disagree.

There is an air of legendary mystery about the swan. Some swans are mute, but most have sonorous voices of surprising power and reach. Poetic tradition declares that the swan sings in dying, and so we have the familiar phrase to indicate the last effort of a poet—"swan song." Othello exclaims, "I will play the swan and die in music." And Portia says in "The Merchant of Venice," "He makes a swan-like end, fading in music."

A hundred other poets have used similar expressions, and yet naturalists declare that the swan does not make any music in dying, though it may make a noise. And these same naturalists aver that the great vocal powers of swans are due to a special sounding apparatus formed by "the coiling of the long trachea (windpipe) within the sternum" (breast bone). The crane, whose trumpet call, when a flock is setting off for a long, high flight, can be heard from above the clouds after the birds are out of sight, is furnished with a similar vocal instrument.

The swan is famous for its longevity. It is said to live a hundred years, and there is at least one recorded instance of a bird in captivity living seventy years. It is longer lived than the raven.—Garrett P. Serviss in Washington Post.

A Curious Trail. All sorts of devices have been used to mark a line of march. A unique method of "blazing the trail" is still to be seen in Africa. Arthur J. Hayes mentions the subject in his "Source of the Blue Nile."

In 1880, after a fierce battle with the Abyssinians, the dervishes pursued their foes as far as the lake district. The mahdi's men had small knowledge of geography and little topographical intelligence. So the advance party, in order to mark the route for those who came after and also to guide the force on their return journey, twisted the saplings along the way into living knots. The war ended, but the tied up trees grew and flourished, but uncouthly twisted and distorted, and are now the only reminders of that uprising of the dervishes.

Mrs. Arthur Leland charmingly entertained the Tuesday Kensington Club yesterday afternoon.

Beautiful clusters of crimson and pink ramblers adorned the rooms and a dainty repast was served.

The Charlotte Tuttle Sisterhood of the Presbyterian church are enjoying a Kensington and picnic supper at "Oak Lawn," the beautiful home of Mr. T. M. Ustick and daughter, Mrs. Regina Staubus, this evening.

The large grounds and varandahs, as well as the spacious rooms were all hospitably placed at the disposal of the guests, who found the affair one of the most pleasurable since the organization of the class.

The picnic supper included every delicacy.

A delightful birthday party was given by Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson Tuesday evening, for their attractive daughter, Miss Bertha.

BOTH TITLES ARE REGISTERED

A deal of importance was concluded Tuesday, through the agency of the Fayette Renting Agency, when H. D. Chaffin traded one square in Blueville, on Columbus avenue, to James Woodland, for Mr. Woodland's farm on the Columbus pike.

The farm, while not a large one, contains a splendid residence and improvements generally. The Blueville property consists of one square of ground upon which a store and three residences are located.

A feature of the deal was that both men had the titles to their respective properties registered under the Torrens system, so that when the deeds passed each had the state's guarantee back of the title and both men are sure of their property.

It is expected that this custom will become general, and that when a man buys a farm he will insist that the title first be registered so that there can be no question of a clear title.

WEATHERCOCKS.

They Were Known Before Our Era and Were Then Called Tritons.

The weathercock had its origin at a very early date. Marcus Virtruvius Pollia, a noted Roman architect and engineer, who was born about 80 B. C., in his works calls a vane a triton, probably because in his time it had the form of a triton. The usual form on towers, castles and secular buildings was that of a banner, but on ecclesiastical buildings it was a representation of the male of the barnyard fowl.

There have been other forms of vane. The one over St. Peter's, Cornhill, London, is in the shape of a key; that over St. Mildreth's church is a gilt ship under full sail. The grasshopper of the Royal Exchange, London, is the vane that formerly surmounted the former exchange. The dragon on the spire of Bow church, Cheapside, is another celebrated vane.

One of Mother Shipton's prophecies was that when the dragon of Bow church and the grasshopper of the Royal Exchange should meet the streets of London would be deluged with blood. In what way they should meet the old dame did not explain, but it is known that at one time these two vane were side by side in the yard of a stonemason in Old Street road, yet there was no shedding of blood.—London Answers.

HOLDS WILSON BOUND BY ONE TERM PLANK

Washington, June 30.—Political advisers of President Wilson say they have learned definitely that William J. Bryan will oppose the renomination of Mr. Wilson on the ground that the president is bound by the one term plank of the Baltimore platform to refuse to be a candidate again. The president's friends have learned that Mr. Bryan will take the stand that Mr. Wilson, as the candidate of the convention which adopted the one term plank, is bound by this in principle.

It became known that before his departure for the west Mr. Bryan sounded out some of his closest political associates regarding his contemplated stand, and that as a result the news reached the president's advisers. In anticipation of these coming developments Mr. Wilson's managers have quietly begun preparations to cope with Mr. Bryan, who, it is learned, will contend in this case as he did in resigning from the state department, that he is making his fight for a principle and that personal considerations are in no way involved.

Mr. Bryan differs substantially with the president on both the prohibitory and suffrage issues, and it is believed that these differences, as well as the one term issue, will figure in Mr. Bryan's opposition to Mr. Wilson's candidacy for a second term.

The president's friends are resolved to treat Mr. Bryan with every possible courtesy, so that if any break comes he will have to precipitate it. It is understood that Mr. Bryan is to be given first choice in Nebraska patronage and to be recognized in patronage matters otherwise. His appointees in the state department are to be retained.

The president's views on the single term issue have been known to members of congress since before his inauguration. In a letter addressed to personal friends in congress in 1912 he expressed himself against the principle, saying he believed it the duty of a president to go before the country and give the voters an opportunity to approve or condemn his administration.

FRENCH RETAKE LOST POSITIONS

Paris, June 30.—The Germans made a sudden attack on the slopes to the east of Metz, in the Vosges, and forced the French to retreat. A counter attack delivered immediately drove the Germans from most of the trenches they had captured, while further attacks resulted in the occupancy of all the positions by the French.

"Just the one box of Foley Kidney Pills relieved my backache."—J. W. Etris, Etris, Ga. "Last year I was suffering from a terrible backache," writes J. W. Etris of Etris, Ga. "Every time I'd lean over or stoop over to one side, I'd have a painful catch in my back just over my kidneys. I tried medicines with no good results. I bought a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills, and just the one box entirely relieved my backache. It has been some time since I took them, so I think I am well."

Weakened, overworked, stopped-up kidneys cause stiff joints, sore muscles, rheumatism, sleep disturbing bladder ailments, biliousness and various other ills. Foley Kidney Pills are a scientific medicine, compounded to clear the kidneys and restore them to healthy action by dissolving and driving out of the system the waste products and poisons that cause kidney trouble and bladder ailments. You will like their tonic and restorative action, ready effect and quick good results.

CHARACTER STUDIES OF OUR PEACE ENVOY.

Colonel E. M. House, President Wilson's personal friend, who recently returned from Europe, where it was generally understood he sounded the warring countries on the question of peace.

BRYAN IS IN HOME TOWN

Lincoln, Neb., June 30.—Thousands of W. J. Bryan's fellow citizens heard him declare here that he resigned from the cabinet because he believed that the policy of firmness in dealing with Germany adopted by President Wilson would have the same result as had the firmness of European nations in dealing with the Austro-Serbian crisis, and that if every American citizen would have criticized him he would still have resigned because of his conviction that he was right. For over an hour he declaimed against any participation of the United States in the present war and rejoiced that he at last was able to answer back those who had poured their venom upon him while he was tongue-tied as secretary of state.

GREAT IRISH PATRIOT DEAD

OUTPUT IS INCREASED

Washington, June 30.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels took occasion to call attention to the work of the naval torpedo station at Newport, R. I., which he visited on his recent trip to the war college at that place. Mr. Daniels declared that whereas two years ago the output of this station was only seventy-five torpedoes a year, with only one commercial company furnishing torpedoes, the output of the station alone is 300 a year and can be considerably increased with the completion of new shops authorized by congress last year. The Washington navy yard has recently been made a torpedo producing station, thus further increasing the navy supply. The cost of making torpedoes also has been reduced in the last two years, the secretary said.

ELECTRIC LIGHT BULBS.

Why the Delicate Filament Becomes Heated to Incandescence.

In the bulb of the ordinary electric lamp used chiefly for house light there is a thin filament of metal wound on what is called an arbor.

This filament is so prepared that it offers high resistance to the passage of the current of electricity, and because of this it is heated to incandescence when a current passes through it. All the air having been extracted from the bulb in its making, this prevents the metal from burning up, as it would do if oxygen were present.

Vegetable fiber was used for the filament of the first incandescent lamps. The next development was the cellulose process, which is still used in carbon and metalized lamps, although a number of processes are used now to improve the filament. The discovery that tungsten metal could be used for this filament in incandescent lamps was made as recently as 1906, and the first tungsten lamp was made in this country in 1907.

At first the tungsten filaments were composed of what was called tungsten paste that made an extremely fragile wire. The new process now used produces a strong wire under pressure, finer than the finest human hair. They run up to 5,000 candle power.—Boston Herald.

Mrs. Bowser Goes A-visiting

And Mr. Bowser Refurnishes the House.

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

When Mr. Bowser came home the other evening he found Mrs. Bowser with tears in her eyes and a sad look on her face.

"Has the cook left her job?" he asked.

"No; she is all right," was the answer.

"Has the cat lost herself again?"

"There she is on the lounge," she answered.

"Then what is it?"

"It's bad news from mother. She is very ill."

"Well, I'm not glad to hear it, though we don't like each other. Did the news come by letter?"

"Yes; she got some one to write me."

"And of course she wants you to come up there?"

"Yes, Can I go?"

"Of course you can. You can start in the morning and stay until the old lady is on her feet again and ready to come back with you and give me the usual hot time."

"You are a good husband, Mr. Bowser," said Mrs. Bowser as her tears flowed afresh.

"Pooh!" he replied. "It won't put me out in the least. The cook and I can run the old shanty for a couple of weeks as well as not. You pack your trunk tonight, and I will get you off early in the morning. After I have eaten dinner I will go out and telegraph that you will be there tomorrow."

When the cook was consulted about the arrangement she had some objections.

"But you know, ma'am, Mr. Bowser is always experimenting. He will be worse than ever when you are gone. I shall walk around in fear of being blown up or blown down or blown somewhere or other."

"Nothing of the kind will happen," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"But won't he bring home a fire escape and want me to give it a trial?" "I will make him promise that he won't."

"Will he ask me to use a patent fuel in the range?"

"No."

"And there won't be any burglar alarms to go off with a buzz at midnight and scare me into jumping out of my window?"

"Mr. Bowser will be very good, and you can depend on it."

"Then I'll stay, ma'am, and I'll do my best to see that the cat don't get lost or that tramps don't steal the ash cans."

Next morning Mrs. Bowser was off, and Mr. Bowser's last words to her were:

"Feed your mother plenty of chicken soup, and don't worry a minute about me."

It was two days later that Mr. Bowser got a plan in his head and might have been heard saying to himself:

"By George, I'll do it! Mrs. Bowser was speaking the other day about some new things for the house and lamenting that we could not afford them for another year. We can afford them now, but I wanted to curb any extravagant notion on her part. She shall come home to find almost a new house. She is a mighty good woman, although she does sit down on me pretty hard at times, and she shall be rewarded. It will be fun for me to be buying this and that and will keep me from being lonesome."

Mr. Bowser must take the cook into his confidence, for he needed her help. When he told her what he proposed to do and asked her opinion she replied:

"Mr. Bowser, if I was a married woman, which I ain't and may never be, and had the home which I may never have, and should go and see my sick mother, which died five years ago, and her soul is now in heaven, and while I was gone my husband should take it upon himself to refurnish the house."

"What?" asked Mr. Bowser, as he halted there.

"I think I would call him an idiot, when I got home."

"But why, Maggie?"

"Because no man has the taste and wit to refurnish a house. You know what harmony is, Mr. Bowser?"

"Humph!" he grunted.

"It will be the harmony of the thing, Mr. Bowser—the harmony—and if you will excuse me for saying so, I don't think you've got it. But I will help you all I can."

"Well," said Mr. Bowser as he turned away, "maybe I haven't got the harmony of a hen, but I guess this house won't scare a tramp out of it when I get through with my work. It's good of you to offer to help me, and I will pay you extra wages for extra work."

Mr. Bowser took half a day off from his office work to go through the house and see what was needed, or he thought was needed. The parlor carpet had been down for three years, but had been taken care of so well that it looked almost new. Still, there were roses in the pattern, and he had heard Mrs. Bowser say that people of refined taste avoided rose carpets. He would get sunflowers if he could; if not he would get violets.

The sitting room carpet had several holes burned in it, and there was a threadbare place or two. The holes had been burned as he carelessly threw away his cigar stub and the spots had been worn by his feet, as he sat rocking to and fro. He had laid the damage to the cat when Mrs. Bowser complained, but he knew it was his own work. He would buy another. He wasn't sure yet what pattern he would get, but it would be something lively. He wasn't always lively when seated in that room of an evening, but a lively carpet might help his spirits.

There were the upholstered chairs. The cat had slept on every one of them and wear and dust had given them a somewhat dingy look. They must be reupholstered and the colors must be bright and lively.

The most of the pictures on the walls had been in the Bowser family for a good many years. There was one of a widow weeping over her husband's tombstone; another of an angel hovering over a dying infant; another of Niagara Falls in winter, and yet another of a river flowing past an old barn on its way to the sea. What was in that old barn no one could ever make out and why the river flowed to the north instead of the south was another vexed question. There were three pictures among the lot that could be saved. The rest must go. There should be nothing on the walls to bring grief to the heart or tears to the eyes. Mr. Bowser had always been fond of British hunting scenes and he would hang up half a dozen if he could find them. The piano was a square, with four legs. He could not see his way to improve it any unless he removed two of the legs, and he decided to meddle with them.

Ten years before he had disposed of the wooden bedsteads in the bedrooms and had bought those of brass and iron. He would now make a new purchase of ash and walnut ones. They would be no better, but they would help make a change. When Mr. Bowser had made a note of what was needed he began the active work of refurnishing. He sent away the chairs to the upholsterer's and the bedsteads to a second hand store. He was lucky enough to find a purchaser for the carpets on the floor, and thus the house was cleared for what was to come.

Mrs. Bowser wrote that her mother is much better and that she could be home the next week, and Mr. Bowser wrote her in reply:

"Do not think of coming home for the next three or four weeks. Your dear mother is liable to have a relapse, and if she does it will be the grave for her. Things are running happily and smoothly. Your affectionate husband," etc.

The cook was not taken along when Mr. Bowser selected the covering for the chairs and the new carpets. She kindly offered to go, but was purposely left behind. If the above said selections were not howling successes it was not the fault of a devoted husband. The salesman in the carpet store started in to tell Mr. Bowser what the latest thing in carpets was, but was met with the reply:

"Sir, I was selling carpets before you were out of your cradle, and I think I know what I want."

This settled the salesman and also sold some fifty yards of carpeting which had been in the store for the past twenty years.

All things have an end, and Mr. Bowser's refurnishing had one two weeks later. He hustled. He made others hustle. He used the telephone and his legs unsparingly. He coaxed and he threatened, and at length all the changes were made and the house awaited Mrs. Bowser's homecoming.

She came. The cook had been through the house several times and shook her head at every change and said to herself:

"Harmony! Wait till Mrs. Bowser gets home and see if there'll be harmony. Red, green, blue, brown, all mixed together. It's no wonder the cat shows signs of going insane."

Riding home from the depot, Mr. Bowser was very enthusiastic, but he did not even hint at what had been done at the house. He let Mrs. Bowser find out for herself. She found out.

Before she had taken off her hat she had gone through every room and noted every change, and just as the smiling Mr. Bowser looked for her to break forth in words of praise and gratitude she fell full length on the floor in a dead faint and did not recover from it till three or four of the neighboring women had rushed in and worked over her a quarter of an hour.

The harmony was too much. She was a brave, strong woman, but she could not stand it.

As for Mr. Bowser—but he had done his best.

A SKELETON IN THE CLOSET

The Legend From Which the Well Known Saying Was Taken.

The origin of that singular and widely quoted saying, "A skeleton in the closet," which is found in almost every language in Europe, is found in one of those curious collections of stories that have come down from the middle ages. In one of these collections, compiled by an unknown hand about the middle of the tenth century, there is a story of a wealthy lady who, having a secret grief, confided it to a friend who was apparently a perfectly happy woman. She was the wife of a nobleman who lived in his castle in the south of France. She and her husband were outwardly on the most loving terms. Not a care cloud seemed to cast a shadow on her path.

After hearing the story of her afflicted friend the noble lady took her by the hand and led her to a secret chamber adjoining her bedroom, there opened the door of a closet and exposed a skeleton. "Know, my friend," she said, "no one is happy. Every day I am forced by my husband to kiss the grinning death head, which is that of a gentleman who was my husband's rival and whom I would have married had not my parents willed otherwise."

On the Moon.

The question "Could a man live on the moon?" has been put to an eminent astronomer, who replied: "I am afraid not. A man transplanted to the moon would find himself the lone inhabitant of a perfectly lifeless orb in which eternal silence reigns. He would have to manage without air, water or fire. He would not need to put windows in his house, for there is no wind, no rain, no dust, upon the moon. It has been truly and practically observed that the moon is apparently abandoned to death, nourishing no inhabitants, producing nothing resembling trees, flowers or beautiful things of any kind—useless, in short, except as a mass of extinct volcanic rubbish, which drags the sea into tides and reflects the sunbeams in moonlight."

Baked Men.

Workers in porcelain factories are literally baked, but by some miracle they remain sufficiently undone to live. At least if they are not quite baked they endure a stronger heat than that which browns the Sunday sirloin. The furnaces wherein porcelain is finished are kept at the fiercest heat used in any industry. A chain of workmen, their heads and bodies swathed in fireproof garments, take the finished pieces from the fire one at a time and pass them to the cooling room. The man at the head of this chain—he who stands nearest the furnace—can only work in five minute shifts. In his intervals of rest he lies on a mattress, drinking glass after glass of ice water from the hands of a small boy.

Dean Swift's Complaint.

It is no new thing, this complaint, which one hears of the high cost of living. Writing to Stella from London in the year 1710, Dean Swift remarks: "I lodge in Bury street, St. James, where I removed a week ago. I have the first floor, the dining room and bedchamber at 8 shillings a week, plaguily deep, but I spend nothing eating, never go to a tavern and very seldom in a coach, yet, after all, it will be expensive."

There is a large and growing job of rewriting international law looking for the right man.

NEWS OF THE DIAMOND

Good Sport Ahead.

The chief matter of anticipation in baseball circles is the series of three games scheduled for next Sunday and Monday on the home ground against the Dayton Reserves, close competitors of the Athletics for several seasons past.

The first game will be Sunday afternoon. Another will be played Monday morning and the last Monday afternoon.

The Monday morning game will be for the benefit of the Washington C. H. Welfare Association.

A letter from Manager Adam Ruehl of the Reserves with regard to the benefit game, replying to a letter from Manager Noon, states that the Reserves are "always willing to help a good cause along and will gladly donate their services," hoping that the Welfare Association might "realize a goodly sum."

The lineup of the Reserves has been submitted as follows: Brauer, lf; Leming, 2b; Kiefer, cf; P. Green, rf; Walton, 1b; Winters or Schmidling, 3b; Rosenkranz, ss; Burg or Farley, c; O. Green, Neibar, Moore, p.

Corwin Coming Home.

From baseball camp comes the information that Corwin will return this week from the south and that the Athletics are considering working him into the lineup for the Sunday and Monday games.

Will Try Gregg.

Howard Gregg, local high school southpaw twirler will be given a tryout at the slab in the Monday morning game with the Dayton Reserves. Young Gregg has shown good promise and his friends believe he will make good.

Game Friday.

The Athletics have a game scheduled for Friday against Mt. Sterling, at Sterling. Manager Noon will take the usual lineup.

Hungeling Will Be Here.

A letter from Catcher Hungeling of Dayton, received by Manager Noon Wednesday states that the former will desert his crutches for a cane this week and will be over with the Dayton Reserves to watch the game Sunday.

Sears to Get Try Out.

Harry Sears, of Sabina, will be tried out for the Athletic pitching staff in the game at Mt. Sterling Friday. Sears is said to have been putting up a pretty stiff argument in the twirling line around Sabina. Hagerty or Woods will catch this game. The lineup will be announced tomorrow.

Postponed.

The Methodist-Presbyterian game scheduled for Tuesday was postponed on account of rain. The Christians and Wesley Chaplains cross bats Friday.

test is as follows: Jean Hollingsworth, 5,400; Mabel Larrimer, 4,820; Chloe Anderson, 2,550; Hazel Michaels, 2,450; Esther Leland, 2,120; Belle Gifford, 2,110.

CHILICOTHE TRIES STREET FLUSHER

The exemplification of how easy and how economically a street may be washed, given on South Paint street by merely using a couple of hundred feet of fire hose and a fire hydrant should be an object lesson to the city service department and to council. The washing of the streets twice or three times a week in such a manner would result in the saving of many dollars to merchants, whose goods are filled with dust and made shop worn too early by the scraping method now in use. The scraper does not get the dust, and it is the dust that causes the mischief.

With the paraphernalia at hand there is no need for a street washing machine at all—all that is needed is a flat nozzle and judicious reduction of the water pressure so that it will not injure the paving. By such use the dust can be abolished and the streets really kept clean. Berlin, the cleanest city in the world, uses this method of cleaning the streets and has made a world's record by so doing.—Chillicothe Gazette.

Home Merchants have it, no doubt.

WILL TEST LAW IN CINCINNATI

By Associated Press.
 Cincinnati, June 30.—With the appearance in criminal court today of L. L. Loeb, an attorney of this city, and the opening of four sealed indictments against him, it became known that the state attorney general and the State Department of Insurance had selected Cincinnati in which to test the law which, they claim, invalidates all mutual insurance associations.

BRITAIN WARNS HER MERCHANTS

By Associated Press.
 London, June 30.—The British Government, through the Board of Trade, has warned all British commercial firms that they will be expected to exercise the most scrupulous care in the transaction of their business abroad, during the period of the war, so as to avoid any likelihood of making themselves agents for the supply of goods to hostile countries. "It is inadvisable," says the official circular, "that any new accounts should be opened by any British trader in neutral countries without the fullest inquiries as to the character of the business proposed by him."

The circular explains that traders in neutral countries are in many cases engaged either directly or indirectly in trade with the enemies of the Entente allies. British firms, therefore, "must survey with great caution every opening for business by neutral importers or exporters." It is added that "the proclamations relating to trading with the enemy cover indirect trading through neutral agents, and carelessness in transacting neutral business may involve traders in the severe penalties attaching to trading with the enemy."

GRAVEL FROM IMPROVED STREETS QUITE USEFUL

City Service Director Gerstner has been putting to good use the gravel and dirt excavated in the rebuilding of North street and Washington avenue, improving with it other streets about the city.

Workmen at the present time are effecting quite an improvement on John street. The big hill on this street has been cut down and the leveling and grading is being accomplished with some of the dirt and gravel taken from Washington avenue. Broadway and several other small streets in the vicinity are being repaired.

IS RECOVERING

Elmer McCune, confined in the Fayette Hospital with a very serious fracture of one leg, is recovering slowly, although he suffered much from the injuries received when a gasoline engine wheel flew into pieces and struck him.

CONDITION CRITICAL

It is learned with great regret by a large number of relatives and friends that Mr. H. K. Stewart, of Spring Hill farm, whose illness has been gravely serious for some weeks, is in a critical condition as the Herald goes to press.

Lofty Expectations.

"Is your husband all you thought he was?"
 "Just about. But he doesn't come close to being all he thought he was."

JUST TAKING A NAP.

Never Lie Down Dressed Without a Covering Over You.

When dropping down on a couch for a nap during the day many persons seem to feel that, because they are fully dressed, it is not at all necessary to add extra covering.

While we are awake we are constantly in motion of some sort. Every movement, no matter how slight it is, brings into action some muscles. Every time an effort is made the blood rushes forward to deluge those moving muscles. The heart beats more quickly following effort, and the air streams in greater abundance into the lungs.

All of this means that action, and the consequent effort creates and keeps up what we call normal bodily heat. Now during what we call sleep all these conditions are changed. The muscles rest as well as the brain. The heart beats more slowly, and the breathing is, in consequence, more quietly done—all of which tends to bring about the lowering of the body's temperature, and the sleeping person loses some of this heat. He senses or feels this loss readily and often, if he has lain uncovered, such a person is heard to complain of feeling cold upon awakening.

Therefore to enable one to keep in or retain the normal bodily heat while sleeping, even if the sleeping is done in a warm room, one should not fail to have a covering of some sort ready at hand.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

MILLET AND BARBIZON.

The Great Painter's "Visit" to the Hamlet He Immortalized.

In an article on Millet in "Sketches of Great Painters," by Edwin Watts Chubb, there is an interesting account of how this famous French painter happened to be forever associated with the hamlet of Barbizon.

"In 1849 a Norman peasant," writes Mr. Chubb, "with his wife and three children, drove to a footpath leading to the little hamlet of Barbizon. They were near the great and beautiful forest of Fontainebleau, but at this moment they had little interest in the magnificent forest, for it was raining, and they had to abandon the highway and their vehicle to enter the pathway that led to the hamlet. The man was well built and with a good and notable head. His shoulders were the strong shoulders of a man of thirty-five, so he placed thereon his two little girls, while his wife followed with an infant in her arms. By her side walked a servant carrying a basket of provisions. Together the little party trudged through the rain, the mother raising her skirt to protect the little one from the rain. A peasant woman thought a band of strolling players was arriving.

"The sturdy father of the family was Millet, the man destined to immortalize the little village of Barbizon. He had come down from Paris the day before with his friend Jacque to find a quiet little hamlet on the edge of the forest. Jacque had learned of this ideal spot, but had forgotten the name, except that it ended in 'zon.' They had found it at last, and there Millet intended to remain 'for a time.' He remained for twenty-seven years—that is, to the end of his life."

The Moth and the Flame.

The moth plunges headlong into the flames because of the way its body is constructed. There are two symmetrical points, exactly alike chemically, the moth's body—namely, its eyes. The rays of light modify the chemical condition of one side more than the other, then the moth's power of movement is affected. There is a strong muscular tension on one side than the other, and the moth is forced to move toward the source of light. However, one of the eyes is removed, the chemical symmetry is destroyed, and instead of plunging into the flame it moves about in a circle.
